YOUR REEL IS READY

NOW GET KNOWN.

KNOWN

A great reel only works if coaches see it. Here's how to get yours in front of the right people, starting today.

1 EMAIL IT TO COACHES

Pick schools that fit you: level, academics, location. Send a short, personal email to each one's coach, from the athlete's own email. Put the reel link in the email and attach your recruiting profile if you have one.

SUBJECT 2029 1B/3B | First Last | High School, City ST | Highlight reel

BODY Coach Last name, I'm a 2029 1B/3B at High School and I'm very interested in your school because one real reason. My highlight reel: link. Height/weight, 1–2 key numbers, GPA. My next games and events: dates. Thank you for your time. Name, phone, email, Hudl/X

2 POST IT AND PIN IT

Post the vertical cut to Instagram, TikTok and X, and pin it to the top of your profile. Tag @knowngoodmedia and we'll share it too.

3 PUT IT EVERYWHERE

Add the link to Hudl, any recruiting profiles, your X and Instagram bios, and your email signature. Same reel, same numbers, everywhere.

4 HAND IT TO YOUR COACHES

Send it to your high school and travel coaches. College coaches call them first, and a reel they can forward makes their job easy.

5 BRING IT TO CAMPS

Print a few copies of your recruiting profile for camps and showcases. The QR code takes a coach straight to your reel from their phone.

6 KEEP IT FRESH

New season, new numbers, new plays. Update your reel and profile when your stats or measurables change. Old numbers hurt more than they help. When you're ready for an update, start a new order in the parent portal.

ABOUT RECRUITING RULES

You can email college coaches any time, and starting early is smart. NCAA rules limit when Division I coaches can reply or reach out, and the dates depend on your sport and grad year. Check the current rules for your sport at ncaa.org. Division II, NAIA and junior college timelines are different.

QUICK TIPS

- Use a simple email: firstlast2029@...
- Answer coaches within a day.
- Keep your social media clean. Coaches look.
- Follow the programs you email.